NATURE'S REMEDIES
DRUGS
ELECTRO MAGNETIC
PASTELS & PILLS

For the Speedy and Permanent Cure of Seminal Weakness, Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions,
Neuritis, Nervous and General Debility, Lupus, and all Diseases arising from Solitary Habits, or Excessive Indulgence.

THERE are thousands of YOUNG MEN, as well as MIDDLE AGED MEN, who are suffering to some extent from the above diseases. Many, perhaps, are not aware of their true condition, or when assistance is really needed.

For the benefit of such, we herewith give a few of the most common symptoms: viz. Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head and Side, Diminution of Sight, Deafness, Itches before the Eyes, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Nervous Tremor, Self-Distrust, Timidity, &c. For each and all of the above symptoms these remedies will be found a "Sovereign Remedy."

These remedies embrace three prescriptions: A box of Pastels, a box of Nervous Tonic Pills, and a box of Female Tonic Pills. Each box contains a full and complete explanation of the disease, and the mode of cure, and is so prepared, and should be used together in every case. Their superiority over other modes of treatment may be readily seen by the following results:

1. They immediately arrest nocturnal and diurnal emissions.
2. They remove local weakness, causing the organs to assume their natural tone and vigor.
3. They strengthen the constitution by overcoming nervous debility and general weakness.
4. They enliven the spirits, which are usually depressed by exciting sexual excitement.

5. They improve the properties they restore the patient his natural health and vigor of mind and body.
6. They cure when all other means have failed
and even a room-mate.
7. They are safe in every case, and never injure.
8. They are easy and pleasant to use, and will not interfere with the patient's usual business or pleasure.

9. They can be used without suspicion, or knowledge of even a room-mate.
10. They may come within the reach of all, who have failed the price of the Pastels at $1 per box, and the Pills at 50 cents per box each. In ordering by mail, in addition to the price, twelve cents in stamps should be enclosed for return postage.

11. A treatise on the result of Urinary, Nephritic,
Sexual, debility, Involuntary Nocturnal Emissions, and all diseases, causing Impotency and Mental and Physical Debility.
Ladies being troubled with painful or entirely suppressed menstruation, should learn the mode of sending for a book. Enclose two red stamps to pay the postage.

UNION MEN CAPTURED.—The Mt. Sterling Whig says that thirty Union volunteers were captured on Sunday, the 13th, by a company of 100 mounted secessionists, in Wolfe county; they belonged evidently to the Protestsburg camp, where they undoubtedly took their prisoners. The volunteers were preparing to leave for Col. Sid. Barnes' camp at Estill Springs.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.—David Smith has commenced suit against Wm. Cullen Bryant & Co., of the New York Evening Post, for damages in $25,000, the Post, in the form of an intercepted correspondence, charging Smith with being disloyal to the Union.

Mowry, the successful Union candidate for State Senator in the Erie (Penn.) District, avowed, before the election, over his own signature, that if he was President of the United States he would give the slave of a rebel in arms against the Government one hundred and sixty acres of his master's plantation for his master's scalp; and that he was in favor of making the war one of universal emancipation.

A Washington correspondent says that the President, a short time ago, appointed one of Jas. Buchanan's Washington favorites a Lieutenant in the regular army, after the Potter Investigating Committee had reported against his loyalty. The President regards the committee as a humbug.

FOUND DEAD.—Mr. B. A. Muir, a farmer of Fayette county, was found dead on his own place near Athens, ten miles from Lexington, on Wednesday morning. The Observer says it is thought that he was shot on Monday night whilst watching his cornfield. Two or three backshots had entered his forehead. His gun, loaded, was found lying by his side. His corn had frequently been stolen of late, and he had determined to watch it. It is presumed that some one of the thieves shot him while on guard.

The telegraph cable across the river at Evansville, connecting that point with Henderson, was broken the other day by the anchor of the gun-boat Conestoga. Its loss just now is a serious inconvenience.

The crew consists of thirty men.

The tomato season ends with the first part of autumn. If the plants are pulled up before the first frosts, and hung up in a well ventilated cellar, with the tomatoes on them, the fruit will continue ripening until Christmas. The cellar should not be too dry nor too warm.

Vital Principles.

"Important as I deem it to discuss, on all proper occasions, the policy of the measures at present pursued, it is still more important to maintain the right of discussion in its full and just extent. Sentiments lately sprung up, and now growing popular, render it necessary to be explicit on this point. It is the ancient and constitutional right of this people to canvass public measures, and the merits of public men. It is a hallowed right, a freedom of speech. It has ever been enjoyed in every house, cottage, and cabin in the nation. It is not to be drawn into controversy. It is as undoubted as the right of breathing the air, and walking on the earth. Belonging to private life as a right, it belongs to public life as a duty; and it is the last duty which these whose representative I am shall find me to abandon. The high constitutional privilege I shall defend and exercise within this House, and without this House, and in all places; in time of war, in time of peace, and at all times. Living, I will assert it; dying, I will assert it; and should I leave no other legacy to my children, by the blessing of God, I will leave them the inheritance of free principles, and the example of a manly, independent, and constitutional defense of them."—Daniel Webster.

We learn that the store of Mr. M. A. Dehoney, at the White Sulphur, P. O., was entered on Saturday night last, by persons unknown, and robbed of four hundred dollars worth of Dry Goods, Groceries, &c. The thieves gained an entrance by forcing the lock off the front door, and then helped themselves to whatever they could well carry off.

For the Yeoman.

Communicated.
The position that the great statesmen of monarchical England have always taken on the right of the people to petition the government, and suggest remedies for its good, even in times of war and revolution, is a sad comment on the despotism and usurpations of the Government at Washington in sending men to Fort Lafayette without a hearing, simply because, having the good of their whole country and posterity at heart, they have entertained mad fanaticism to pause in its career before all sections are irretrievably ruined. When the right of petition on the part of some of the subjects of Great Britain was gained in 1791, Mr. Fox, the great Conservator of the Magna Charta and of the people's liberties, used these memorable words in a speech rebuking the attempted interference of the Government with the rights of the subjects: "But it is said that these bills will expire in a few years; that they will expire when we shall have peace and tranquility restored to us. What a sentiment to inculcate! You tell the people that when every thing goes well—when they are happy and comfortable—then they may meet freely to recognize their happiness, and pass edicts on their Government; but that, in a moment of war and calamity, they might think proper to condemn Ministers. What a mockery is this! What an insult to say that this is preserving to the people the right of petition! To tell them that they shall have a right to applaud, a right to rejoice, a right to meet when they are happy, but not a right to condemn, not a right to deplore their misfortunes, not a right to suggest a remedy!" Read this, ye incarnations of Gov. Morehead, and ask yourselves if America is as free as England, and if ye are the proper exponents of a Republican form of Government. "Whither are we drifting?"

We copy the following item from the Aurora (Ind.) Commercial. It will be news to the people of this section. We were not aware that the Southern Confederacy had a depot for the reception of horses in this neighborhood. For the benefit of our readers at a distance, we will say that there is no such case hereabouts:

WHOLESALE HORSE STEALING.—We are informed that a few days since a valuable horse was stolen in Lawrenceburg, and the person suspected of the theft was arrested, and taken to the jail. The horse was found. The article which arrested the thief being a report of his complicity in the theft, procured a rope, tied one end round his neck, threw the other over the limb of a tree, and informed him that unless he made a clean breast of it, he should swing for it, whereupon he confessed that he belonged to a den of thieves who were stealing horses for the Confeds in Kentucky, and that his headquarters was a large cave in Kentucky, near Frankfort, capable of holding a large number of horses. Their mode of operation was for two or more to start together on an expedition, and after the horses were stolen, one would still hang round the neighborhood and attract suspicion by his conduct, while his confederates got the horses out of the way.

Upon hearing this story, the owner of the stolen horse immediately started for the cave above mentioned, got a guard of soldiers to assist him in the search, and sure enough, he found his own horse, and a great many others, which had undoubtedly been stolen. The thief was placed in jail at Lawrenceburg, to await his trial at the next term of court.

Congressman Ely Armed for Active Service.
The capture of Congressman Ely at the battle of Bull Run, where he had no business to be, unless a soldier, was considered at Rochester, in his district, as the joke of the season, and it would seem that some of his fellow prisoners have concluded in Scotland, as of the same opinion. The following from a Richmond paper betokens a jolly spirit and a fine appreciation of the ridiculous among the prisoners:

Hon. Alfred B. Ely, M. C. of the Rochester (N. Y.) district, in Lincoln's Congress, who was captured on the field of Manassas, on the memorable 21st of July, and who has since been imprisoned in one of the Richmond tobacco factories, was the recipient, a few days since, of a valuable token of the regard and esteem in which he is held by his fellow prisoners. An ingenious artisan among the number fabricated a wooden sword of considerable dimensions and considerable shape, together with a rope with which were presented to the benighted Congressman by a Committee, in an address, which was replied to by the recipient of the honor in an excellent style, followed by an acceptance of the gift.

Mr. Ely, thus equipped for an active campaign, would seem to deserve a high rank in the Home Guards, which perseveringly drill with their wooden guns in many portions of the North.

The same paper adds:
The prisoners, of which Mr. Ely is one, seem to get along very well under the care of Capt. G. C. Gibbs, who has them in charge. Mr. Ely himself certainly has not suffered in flesh, however he may have done in the spirit.

"AN IMPORTANT FACT."—Under this heading Russell, in one of his late letters to the London Times, says:

The officers of the regular army, however much they may love the Union, do not, as a body, love the present Government. On the contrary, they regard the greatest number of the Cabinet with aversion, and detest their principles. It is hard for men to fight for a cause with good heart, and at the same time hold in contempt those who have that cause in hand at the moment. I was talking to an officer the other day in front of his tent, who had just been reading six other officers. The conversation turned on General Fremont's proclamation, and one said, "If this is to be made a war against slavery, I shall resign, no matter what the consequences may be." I don't think there was an officer there, except one, who did not join in and say, "I would do the same." On inquiry, I found some were Marylanders, one a Virginian, one from Ohio, and one from New York; and it was remarked to me that every one of them had voted against Mr. Lincoln.

THE DIFFICULTY IN MISSOURI.—A St. Louis correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, who writes in vindication of Gen. Fremont, says:

"Hold Missouri with 10,000 men! It would have been as easy to hold Virginia with that number, or Tennessee. If we can hold her with 100,000, after a year's hard fighting, we may account ourselves blessed. Popular opinion needs to be first changed, and a new direction of thought as to popular institutions must be first given. This will come, but not through a foggy policy, nor by temporizing measures."

The following important circular has been addressed to the Governors of all the States on the seaboard and lakes:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, Oct. 14, 1861.

To His Excellency the Governor of the State of—

SIR: The present insurrection had not even revealed itself in arms when disloyal officers hastened to foreign countries to wake their intervention for the overthrow of the Government and the destruction of the Federal Union. These agents are known to have made their appeals to some of the more important States without success. It is not likely, however, that they will remain content with such refusals. Indeed, it is understood that they are industriously endeavoring to accomplish their disloyal purposes by degrees and by indirection. Taking advantage of the embarrassments of agriculture and manufactures arising from the suspension of trade, and from the insurrection they have inaugurated at home, they seek to involve our common country in controversies with States, with which every public interest and every interest of mankind require that it shall remain in relations of peace, amity, and friendship. I am able to state, for your satisfaction, that the prospect for any such disturbance is now less serious than it has been at any previous period during the course of the insurrection. It is, nevertheless, necessary now, as it has hitherto been, to take every precaution that is possible to avoid the evils of foreign war, to be so induced upon those of civil commotion, which we are endeavoring to cure.

One of the most obvious of such precautions is that our ports and harbors on the seas and lakes should be put in a condition of complete defense, for any nation may be said to voluntarily incur danger to its interests when it fails to show that it has sheltered itself on every side from which the storm might possibly come.

The measures which the Executive can adopt in this emergency are such only as Congress has sanctioned, and for which it has provided.

The President is putting forth the most diligent efforts to execute these measures, and we have the great satisfaction of seeing that these efforts are being actively aided, and supported by a loyal, patriotic, and self-sacrificing people, are rapidly bringing the military and naval forces of the United States into the highest state of efficiency. But Congress was elided absorbed during its recent extra session with these measures, and did not provide as supply as could be wished for the fortification of the sea and lake coasts. In previous wars the loyal States have applied themselves by independent means to the improvement and perfection of their defenses. In the case of the port and aid of the Federal Government in its arduous responsibilities. The same disposition has been manifested in a degree eminently honorable by all the loyal States during the present insurrection.

In view of this fact, and relying upon the increase and continuance of the same disposition on the part of the loyal States, the President has directed me to invite your consideration to the subject of the improvement and perfection of the defenses of the State over which you preside, and to ask you to submit the subject to the consideration of the Legislature when it shall have assembled. Such proceedings by the State would require only a temporary use of its means. The expenditure ought to be made the subject of conference with the Federal Government. Being thus made with the concurrence of the Government for general defense, there is every reason to believe that Congress would sanction what the State should do, and provide for its reimbursement. Should these suggestions be accepted, the President will direct the proper agents of the Federal Government to confer with you, and to superintend, direct, and conduct the prosecution of the system of defense of your State.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,
WM. H. SEWARD.

Gen. James Lane.

President Lincoln and the Administration are found by every consideration of our weight with rulers and men—we will not add Christian men—Instantly to take self-interest as will speak for itself. The State, and the very name of civilization, social disgrace, as are the consequences of trusting responsible military command to a man like James Lane. A command under the like of such a man is no better than an armed and organized banditti; with of course more terrors and power for evil than attaches to any band of mere robbers and murderers. Because its officers act under regular commissions and cloaked in the name of authority. Its movements and marches are no less than the raids of lawless bands, who spread themselves over a defenseless country to pillage and carry it. These imputations do not, we presume, justify rest on every individual of his command. Many of his command, probably most of them, simply obey the atrocious orders they receive. But some of his followers are doubtless equally depraved with their leader. We think we need speak no more of the account of Lane's march to Osceola, his burning of towns belonging to citizens in that town—his destruction of it by fire, and his summary putting to death seven of the inhabitants whom he seized, presents a case of wanton devastation and atrocity which admits of no valid excuse. At least, so it is reported to us. The outrages and crimes against property and life perpetrated by him in that foray are a dishonor to the flag and crime with the highest authority to be committed, and will dishonor the Administration, if they are not inquired into and punished in some way. Our Government does not mean to waste Missouri with fire and sword. Its object is to prevent that waste and reduce it to the lowest possible amount. Justifying or conniving at the ravage and laughter of which Lane has been guilty, could be to consign Missouri to a doom as awful as Hyderabad inflicted on the Carac.

If Lane must hold a military position, he and his should be confined under it strictly to the defense of Kansas, and should not, under any pretext, be permitted to come into Missouri. The mutual murders and crimes perpetrated on each other by the opposed parties in Kansas years since, ought by this time to have reached a balance between the two; but we doubt not that Lane's party had its whole regard at that time. It triumphed also politically. Feeding now upon those old grudges, argues a revenge that is insatiable. The Kansas quarrel now to be regarded as a lead one. President Lincoln should not permit it to be an appendage in this war. That war is force and fatal enough without mixing with it the incentives the spirit of a Christian civilization, that is never satisfied short of extermination.—St. Louis Republican.

A New York letter says our merchants are very anxious—as everybody else must be—that the Government should take immediate measures to check the lively traffic now going on under the British flag, borrowed from the occasion by the rebels, between Havana and New Orleans. Private letters from the latter port received yesterday, by the Harriet, how the trade in the magnitude and importance of illicit intercourse are much greater than have been represented by the published accounts. Not only are shipped salt, drugs, groceries and other articles of which the enemy is notoriously "short," but rifles, gunpowder, salt-peter and other warlike stores. So long as this sort of thing can be done with impunity, the effectiveness of the blockade, of course, is all moonshine.

General Orders, No. 2.

Headquarters Kentucky Militia.
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
FRANKFORT, Oct. 18, 1861.

THE public service demands that the gallant men who have tendered their services to their State and Government, and are now in camp, shall be put into active service in the field at the earliest day possible.

It is now, therefore, ordered, by the direction of the Military Board, that all companies, parts of companies, independent, or attached to any regiment now forming within this Commonwealth, not having the minimum number of privates, (Infantry 64, Cavalry 56,) on the 10th day of November next, will be brought together and consolidated into companies with a view to a prompt organization of the companies into regiments, according to the provisions of acts of the General Assembly of the State.

Orders for consolidating fractional companies will be made with a view as far as may be practicable, of associating together men enlisted in the same neighborhood.

All persons authorized to raise companies or regiments will report from day to day the number of men enlisted by them respectively, reporting only such as are actually in camp or quarters, and sworn into service.

The order for consolidating the fractional companies will be made on the returns from recruiting officers, dated 10th November, 1861.

A failure for three consecutive days to report the number of men in camp, as directed by this order, will be considered as an abandonment of the post, by the officer in charge, and the authority given him to recruit will be at once annulled, and another will be assigned to his place. By order.

JOHN W. FINNELL,
Adjutant General.

A Night of Peril.

A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, writing from Glen Cove, L. I., on Monday, gives the following thrilling account of a night on Long Island Sound, in a storm:

During the gale on Friday last, the sloop Exceed, of Glen Cove, while making for our harbor, heavily loaded with a deck load of timber, split her jib, and was obliged to anchor under Red Spring Point. In the course of the evening she carried away one of her anchors, and drifted past Matinecock, and nearly off Peacock's Point. Here she foundered at anchor, and went down head first. The crew consisted of her captain, George O'Neill and Jim, the cabin boy, and three small children were with him. After the sloop commenced filling, the captain and the rest of the party took a small yawl, having taken the precaution to take a water pail for a bailer, and left the sloop at about 10½ o'clock at night. A few moments after leaving their shipwrecked sloop, nearly filling the boat, and carried away one of the oars, O'Neill and the rest of the party, and the sloop, and the yawl's head to the sea, and let her drift. The yawl, however, carried the sound, and landed at Greenwiche about 4 o'clock Saturday, A. M. They came near swamping several times, but by constantly bailing made out to keep afloat.

Immediately on getting ashore, he says they collected seaweed and covered up their children, who were nearly perished and drowned. About 9 o'clock Saturday morning they found a farmer by the name of Ferris, who lived about four miles from where they came ashore, who got up his team and carried his family up to his house, and treated them with every kindness and care, supplying his wife and children with dry clothing and every thing necessary to make them comfortable. On Sunday afternoon they came back to Glen Cove in the small boat, to the surprise of us all, alive and well, somewhat bruised and swollen by the rough night's work.

To meet at the breakfast-table, father, mother, children, all well, ought to be a happiness to every heart; it should be a source of humble gratitude, and should wake up the warmest feelings of our nature. Shame upon the contemptible and low bred crew, whether parent or child, that can ever come to the breakfast-table, where the family have met in health, only to frown, and whine, and growl, and fret. It is prima facie evidence of a mean, and grovelling, and a selfish, and a degraded nature, whenever the churl may have sprang. Nor is it less reprehensible to make such exhibitions at the tea table; for before the morning comes some of the circle may be stricken with some deadly disease, to gather around that table not again to rise.

Children in good health, if left to themselves at the table, become, after a few mouthfuls, garrulous and noisy, but if within at all reasonable or bearable bounds, it is better to let them alone; they eat less because they do not eat so rapidly as if compelled to keep silent, while the very exhalation of spirits quickens the circulation of the vital fluids, and quickens digestion and assimilation. The extremes of society cautiously meet in this respect. The tables of a rich and the nobles of England are weeds of mirth, and bonhomie; it takes hours to get through a repast, and they live long. If any body will look in upon the negroes of a well-to-do family in Kentucky, while at their meals, they cannot but be impressed with the perfect abandon of fiber, exclamation, and mirth; it seems as if they could talk all day, and they live long. It follows, then, that the family table should meet, and that it should make a common interchange of high and low, of warm affections, of cheering mirthfulness, and that generosity of nature which lifts us above the brutes which perish, promiscuous as these things are of good digestion, high health, and long life.

Hall's Journal of Health.

We hear that Mr. Waller Singleton was arrested in Church in Henry county, during services, last Sabbath, by some of the Home Guards, who have camp at Eminence—upon the charge of taking up arms against the Government.

It used to be the case, that a man could "worship God under his own vine and fig tree—none daring to molest or make him afraid." But this was when we had the Government our fathers made, and under its benign institutions, peace and happiness prevailed. O, for our glorious old days of the Republic, and a government properly administered.—Carrollton Times.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE FROM GREENSBURG.
We conversed yesterday evening with a gentleman direct from the advance of Col. Harlan and Anderson, who informed us that Gen. Ward was falling back from Greensburg, in Green county, to Campbellsville, on Saturday. Col. Harlan and Anderson were at Muldraugh Hill, about twelve miles from Lebanon. "Rumors on the streets are to the effect that the rebels, under Roger Hanson, the fat and limping traitor, are now occupying Greensburg. We do not believe these rumors, however, for on Friday last the rebels were on the south side of Little Barren river, and that stream, as well as Green river, was then so high as to render it impracticable to attempt to force it.—Lot's Do-Right.

THE ARMIES OF EUROPE.—The army of Austria consists of a grand total of 728,234 men and 1,088 guns; that of Prussia contains 710,022 men, and 1,441 guns; the army of Russia about 550,000 men, and 1,100 guns; the army of France, 620,482 men, and that of Great Britain, in all parts of the world, 354,527 men.

There are at present thirty sick and wounded soldiers in the wards of the United States Marine Hospital at this city, under the care of resident physician Colecott.
